The patent discloses an adeno-associated virus serotype 1 (AAV-1) DNA which is characterised by two inverted terminal repeats (ITR) and open reading frames for rep and capsid (cap) proteins. The rep reading frame encodes four proteins, Rep 78, Rep 68, Rep 52 and Rep 40, while the cap reading frame encodes three structural proteins, VP1, VP2 and VP3. The AAV-1 sequence or its fragments particularly ITRs, rep and cap coding regions, are useful in production of recombinant viral vectors for gene delivery. These vectors can be used as gene therapy vectors, vaccine vectors or antisense delivery vectors. The AAV-1 does not induce the formation of neutralising antibodies specific to any serotype of AAV hence is useful for transforming host cells, and in the preparation of a Novel adeno-associated virus serotype 1 polynucleotide useful for preparation of medicament for delivery of a transgene to a host.

The rep reading frame capsid (cap) proteins. The rep reading frame cap reading frame encodes three structural proteins, vpl, vp2 and vp3. The AAV-1 sequence or its fragments particularly ITRs, rep and cap coding regions, are useful in production of recombinant viral vectors for gene delivery. These vectors can be used as gene therapy vectors, vaccine vectors or antisense delivery vectors. The AAV-1 does not induce the formation of neutralising antibodies specific to any serotype of AAV cap cap cap is an AAV-1 cap protein vp1 which is useful in the preparation of a medicament for the delivery of transgene to a host. The present sequence is an AAV-1 cap protein vp1 which is useful in the production of recombinant viral vector for gene delivery

These sequences were used in the scope of the invention for comparison with the cap protein derived from AAV serotype 9. The AAV capsid comprises three proteins vpl, vp2 and vp3, which are alternative splice variants. The AAV or the nucleic acid molecule is useful for preparing a medicament for delivering a transgene

New adeno-associated virus (AAV) comprising an AAV capsid having an amino acid sequence of AAV8, useful for preparing a medicament for delivery of a transgene to a cell and for treating cystic fibrosis or hemophilia B.

Disclosure; Fig 2A-C; 82pp; English.

The present sequence is the protein sequence of the vpl capsid protein of adeno associated virus serotype 1 (AAVI). The invention provides the nucleic acid and amino acid sequences of novel AAV8 and fragments of these sequences. Each of these fragments may be used in a variety of vector systems and host cells. Among the desirable fragments are the cap proteins, including vpl, vp2, vp3 and hypervariable regions, the rep proteins, including rep78, rep68, rep52 and rep40, and the sequences encoding these proteins. The fragments may be used alone, in combination with other AAV8 sequences or in combination with elements from other AAV or non-AAV viral sequences or in combination with elements from other AAV and for use as antisense delivery vectors, gene therapy vectors or vaccine vectors. A claimed molecule comprises a cap protein of a functional AAV rep gene from a serotype selected from AAV1, AAV2, AAV3, AAV4, AAV5 and

The AAV sequence have the following activities: cytostatic, antithyeoid, dermatcological, and antiinflammatory. The AAV sequence can be used in gene therapy or as part of a vaccine to treat disorders. The method is useful in detecting and/or identifying AAV sequences and isolating novel sequences that are identified. The sequences may be used e.g. for preventing or treating hyperproliferative conditions such as cancers and psoriasis, and other autoimmune diseases like rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, diabetes, autoimmune thyroiditis, scleroderma or Crohm's disease. This sequence represents an AAV related protein sequence of the invention.

CC virion. Also described are: a polynucleotide encoding the mutated protein composition. Also described are: a polynucleotide encoding the mutated protein composition to a cell or tissue of a vertebrate combined. The recombinant AAV virion is useful for delivering a delivering a recombinant AAV virion is useful for delivering a composition of a cell or tissue of a vertebrate composition in the protein encoded by the heterologous nucleic acid molecule to a cell or tissue of a vertebrate composition of the protein encoded by the heterologous nucleic acid composition of the protein as composition and avoid the neterologous nucleic acid molecule is expressed at a level that provides a therapeutic effect, composition of the protein as composition in the protein that when present in an AAV virion imparts decreased composition as composition as composition and is operably composition of the protein as composition of the protein and is operably composition of the protein. The protein or the recombinant AAV virion as composition of the protein. The protein or the recombinant AAV virion composition is useful for treating or preventing a wide variety of disorders such as hemophilia, phenylketonuria, Crigler-Najjar disease, Gout and Lesch-composition and phenylketonuria, Crigler-Najjar disease, atherosclerosis, cancer, inflammatory and immune disorders, muscular dystrophies, and composition composition as the amino acid sequence of adeno-associated virus in the monitor of the protein or the composition as the amino acid sequence of adeno-associated virus in the composition and instance of adeno-associated virus in the composition or the composition and instance of adeno-associated virus in the composition of the monitorial sequence of adeno-associated virus in the composition of the monitorial sequence of adeno-associated virus in the composition of the monitorial sequence of adeno-associated virus in the composition of the monitorial sequence of adeno-associated virus in the composition of the monitorial sequence of aden

The methods and compositions of the present invention are useful for the prevention and/or treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, arcoidosis, diabetes, scleroderma, psoriasis, vasculitis, Crohn's disease, hemophilia, HIV, bacterial infection, cancer and ulcerative colitis. The present sequence represents the amino acid sequence of an adeno-associated virus protein.

The specification describes a method for lowering total cholesterol levels in a subject. The method comprises delivering to the subject a recombinant adeno-associated virus (AAV) comprising a gene encoding a human apolipoprotein E (apoB) or apoA under the control of a regulatory control sequence which directs expression of the gene. The recombinant AAV also comprises a capsid protein selected from an AAV serotype (e.g. AAV7 or AAV8) which preferentially expresses high levels of transgene in live. A therapeutically effective amount of apoB or apoA expression is obtained upon delivery of low dose of AAV. The method of the invention is

The methods and compositions of the present invention are useful for the prevention and/or treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, arocidosis, diabetes, scleroderma, psoriasis, vasculitis, Crohn's disease, hemophilia, HIV, bacterial infection, cancer and ulcerative colitis. The present sequence represents the amino acid sequence of an adeno-associated virus protein.

The methods and compositions of the present invention are useful for the prevention and/or treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, sarcoidosis, diabetes, scleroderma, psoriasis, vasculitis, Crohn's disease, hemophilia, HIV, bacterial infection, cancer and ulcerative colitis. The present sequence represents the amino acid sequence of an adeno-associated virus protein.

The present sequence is capsid protein VPI of one such serotype (AAV6). AAV6 can be used to contruct AAV viral vectors for use in gene therapy for a range of disorders: cystic fibrosis, cancer, AIDS, atherosclerosis, sickle cell anaemia, thalassaemia, blood clotting disorders and diabetes. The AAV viral vectors have increased transduction efficiency of a particular host cell as the AAV virion containing the AAV vector genome can be modified to express a capsid protein of an AAV serotype that

                                                            The invention relates to a novel method for detecting adeno-associated virus (AAV) sequences in a sample, which comprises subjecting a sample containing a DNA to amplification via a polymerase chain reaction (PCR). The AAV sequence have the following activities: cytostatic, antipsoriatic, antirheumatic, antiarthritic, neuroprotective, antigsoriatic, antithyroid, dermatological, and antiinflammatory. The AAV sequence can be used in gene therapy or as part of a vaccine to treat disorders. The method is useful in detecting and/or identifying AAV sequences and isolating novel sequences that are identified. The sequences may be used e.g. for preventing or treating hyperproliferative conditions such as cancers and psoriasis, and other aucoimmune diseases they rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, diabetes, autoimmune thyroiditis, scleroderma or Crohn's disease. This sequence represents an CAAV related protein sequence of the invention.

New mutated adeno-associated virus (AAV) capsid protein that when presen in an AAV virion imparts decreased immunoreactivity to the virion as compared to the corresponding wild-type virion, useful for treating e.g. present

SEQ ID NO 19; 136pp; English

The invention describes a mutated adeno-associated virus (AAV) capsid CC protein that when present in an AAV virion imparts decreased CC immunoreactivity to the virion as compared to the corresponding wild-type CC virion. Also described are: a polymucleotide encoding the mutated protein CC above; a recombinant AAV virion comprising the mutated protein above; and CC delivering a recombinant AAV virion to a cell or tissue of a vertebrate Subject. The recombinant AAV virion is useful for delivering a CC heterologous nucleic acid molecule to a cell or tissue of a vertebrate Subject, where the protein encoded by the heterologous nucleic acid cC where the recombinant AAV virion may comprise a non-primate, mammalian CC AAV capsid protein that when present in an AAV virion imparts decreased immunoreactivity to the virion as compared to immunoreactivity of primate CC AAV-2, and the heterologous nucleic acid molecule encodes a therapeutic protein and is operably CC linked to control elements capable of directing the in vivo transcription and translation of the protein. The protein or the recombinant AAV virion cand translation of the protein. The protein or the recombinant AAV virion imparts decreased companily, glycogen storage deficiency type 1A, pepck deficiency, CC should be applied a phenylketonuria, Crigler-Najjar disease, Gout and Lesch-CC uncleic acid molecule exparkinson's disease, congestive heart failure, CC cancer, inflammatory and immune disorders, muscular dystrophies, and CC (AAV6) capsid protein VP1.
